Summary of Appeal.
Indicate whether the complaint is Procedural or Substantive (or both) by checking whichever one(s) apply. Complete summary/summaries that apply:
A.___ Procedural. Party appealing contends that the procedures followed at any stage of the formal RPT review process were not consistent with university regulations and contained substantial defects so that party was denied basic fairness and due process. Party asserting a procedural violation must prove it by a preponderance of the evidence (more likely than not). Summarize these claims here:
1. State what the relevant procedures are and where they are written:

2. State what was done that party believes was inconsistent with these required procedures:

3. Explain why party believes these procedural errors denied the party basic fairness and due process:

B ___ Substantive. Party appealing contends that the recommendation of the cognizant V.P. is based upon grounds that are arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable or is discriminatory with respect to criteria which are legally impermissible. Party asserting a substantive violation must prove it by clear and convincing evidence (a higher burden than a preponderance of the evidence) as the recommendation of the Provost/VP is presumed to be in the best interests of the University. Summarize these here:
1. State which grounds used by the Provost/VP party believes were “arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable” and explain why:

2. State whether party believes the Provost's/VP's recommendation was based upon illegal discrimination (e.g. race, sex, age, religion, handicap, sexual orientation), identify the basis of that discrimination, and describe the evidence of discrimination:

C ___ Other Procedures. Has party complained about any of the above-described problems to another Committee, office or administrator? ____Yes ____No. If so, state to whom:
