Subject: EARLY RETIREMENT INCENTIVE PROGRAM

I. PURPOSE

The purpose of the Early Retirement Incentive Program (ERIP) of the University of Utah is (1) to afford those faculty and staff who desire to retire prior to age 65 an opportunity to do so with some financial assistance until eligible for social security benefits, and (2) to encourage some measure of staffing flexibility, consistent with overall university and individual department needs.

III. DEFINITIONS

- A. "Retirement" means the full or partial termination of regular, compensated employment and the initiation of retirement benefit payments or annuities under an applicable retirement program.
- B. "Early Retirement Incentive Program" means an arrangement for retirement before age 65 with incentives as provided in a written contract between the university and the retiree, consistent with the provisions of this policy.
- C. "Phased Retirement Program" means an arrangement for partial retirement as provided in a written contract between the university and the faculty or staff member.
- D. "Social security bridge maximum" means the incentive salary, excluding benefits, which cannot exceed the retiree's estimated social security maximum benefit at age 65.

IV. GENERAL POLICIES

- A. The Early Retirement Incentive Program (ERIP) is available to full-time university faculty and staff who qualify under the criteria outlined below and obtain administrative approval (as described in Section VII).
- B. Participation in the Early Retirement Incentive Program is not an entitlement or a right automatically available to all persons who meet the eligibility criteria. The university reserves the right to limit the total number of participants in the ERIP in order to preserve the viability of a department's basic programs and the integrity of its financial resources.

- C. When a faculty or staff member receives approval to participate in the ERIP, thirty (30) percent of the position salary (or the social security bridge maximum plus 10 percent of the salary before retirement) will be set aside by the university to cover the retirement incentive payment, related payroll expenses, and health benefits. The cognizant vice president (as is the case with any vacant position), shall determine whether the department will be allowed to retain the remaining salary.

V. ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA AND LIMITATIONS

- A. Persons with a university appointment of 75 percent full- time or greater whose age combined with years of service at the University of Utah totals 75 or more, provided they have reached a minimum age of 60, are eligible for the ERIP. Participants in the University Phased Retirement Program are eligible for ERIP although the incentive payment will be based on the phased retirement salary at the time of early retirement.
- B. "A university appointment" is interpreted to mean an appointment in categories A, B, C, D or E as defined in PPM 2-0.
- C. "Years of service" at the University of Utah need not be continuous, but an individual must have worked at the university at least five years in succession immediately prior to the proposed date for early retirement. Only those years in which the individual has worked 75 percent full-time or greater will qualify for credit in ERIP.
- D. Approved leaves of absence with pay will qualify for eligibility credit.
- E. Persons in the following circumstances are not eligible for participation in the ERIP:
 - 1. Any person who has received notice of termination, notice of nonrenewal of contract, or notice of suspension during the previous twelve months.
 - 2. Any person who is retiring under the disability provisions of the university's long-term disability program.

VI. INCENTIVE AND BENEFIT INFORMATION

A. Cash Incentives

- 1. Persons eligible and approved for ERIP will receive an annual cash incentive payment until the attainment of age 65. Payments will be made in biweekly installments.
- 2. The cash incentive will be the lessor of 20 percent of the participants annual university salary at the time of early retirement or the estimated social security bridge maximum benefit for which the retiree will be eligible at age 65. The salary calculation may include summer services if the individual is on a nine-month contract but shall exclude overtime or overload payments.
- 3. The incentive payment shall be increased annually by the average percentage increase in the university's education and general personal services budget appropriated by the legislature subject to the estimated Social Security maximum benefit for which the retiree will be eligible at age 65.

B. Benefits

- 1. The university will provide health insurance coverage to the ERIP participant and his/her dependents equal to the coverage provided to fulltime employees for up to five years after the date of early retirement or until age 65.

2. No further contribution will be made by the university to the employee's TIAA-CREF or State Retirement account.
3. No further contribution will be made by the university to the retiree's life insurance. The retiree may convert the group life insurance coverage to a private plan without a physical examination by applying directly to the life insurance carrier and paying the required premium.
4. Retirees under the ERIP are ineligible for disability benefits funded by the university.
5. Individuals participating in ERIP are eligible for those benefits given to faculty and staff members who retire at age 65 or later as described in PPM 2-10.
6. Accrued annual leave will be paid in lump sum at the time of early retirement.
7. Any remaining financial incentives will end thirty days after the death of the retiree. Health insurance coverage and tuition benefits will be extended to surviving spouses and eligible family members in accordance with established university policies (see PPM 2-43 and 2-45).

VII. PROCEDURES

- A. Eligible employees who wish to participate in ERIP must submit a written request to their immediate supervisor, normally the department chairperson or director, at least nine months prior to the proposed date of early retirement. This notice provision may be waived by mutual agreement of the department chairperson or director, the cognizant dean or vice president, and the faculty or staff member.
- B. The immediate supervisor shall forward the request, accompanied by his/her recommendation, to the cognizant dean or director who will obtain confirmation of eligibility from the benefits section of the human resources department. Recommendations from deans or directors will be forwarded to the cognizant vice president for recommendation to the president and the Board of Trustees for approval.
- C. In the case of joint appointments, both chairs/directors must receive the written request and consult with their cognizant dean/director.
- D. The office of human resources is responsible for administration of the ERIP, including counseling with those interested in the program; responding to requests for information and advice from supervisors, deans, and directors; incentive adjustments due to salary budget increases or social security bridge maximum adjustments; and record keeping.
